GERMAN PRIZE CREW ELUDES CORDON OF ENGLISH CRUISERS, AND PILOTS CAPTURED BRITISH LINER INTO U. S. PORT WITH TEUTON ENSIGN FLYING

AN AIR RAID

LINER THOUGHT LOST IS PRIZE IN GERMAN HANDS WOMEN AND CHILDREN ARE AMONG THE 451 PASSENGERS ON BOARD

London, Feb. 1.—Fifty-four persons were killed and 67 injured in last night's Zeppelin raid. The official statement says bombs were dropped at several towns and in rural districts in Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire and Staffordshire. Some damage to property was caused.

The official British statement shows that the Zeppelins penetrated to the heart of industrial England. Lincolnshire is on the east coast. Its southern boundary is 75 miles north of London. Leicestershire adjoins it to the southwest. Derbyshire is northwest of Leicestershire and Staffordshire is to the west of Derbyshire. These counties comprise a strip of other counties which are given over largely to agriculture. Last night's raid is the nineteenth reported officially from London. The total of casualties reported previously was 178 killed and 400 wounded, which, with the figures thus far received from last night's attack, brings up the number to 232 killed and 600 wounded.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 1—With the German naval ensign fluttering boldly from her stern and in charge of a German prize crew, the British South African liner Appam, given up for lost, took refuge in Hampton Roads this morning with the story of seven vessels destroyed by German raiders off the African coast. The Appam was captured off the Canary Islands on January 15 by a German raider four days after she had sailed from Dakar, British West Africa, for Plymouth, England.

Lieutenant Berge of the German army, placed on the Appam when she was captured, brought in the prize, eluding the cordon of British cruisers across the Atlantic and adding to the historic chapter of German exploits at sea, a chapter to rank with the adventures of the Emden, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich and the Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

There are 451 persons aboard the ship, including 138 survivors of seven ships sunk by the raider which captured the Appam; 20 German civilians being transported from Africa to England to be placed in detention camps; 155 members of the Appam's crew; 116 original passengers on the Appam and the prize crew of twenty-two.

Many of the passengers on the Appam are women and children. There are also several high British colonial officials, who were returning to England from Africa. There are also four wounded sailors, taken from one of the sunken ships which resisted capture and was shelled.

GERMAN RAIDER REAPS HARVEST OF SHIPS

According to the information gleaned from those who talked with Lieutenant Berge, the Appam was captured, without any show of resistance, on January 15, the day that British news reports said wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased.

A prize crew was placed on board and the same day the raider which captured the Appam gave chase to another British steamer bound for Australia with a cargo of meat. The meat ship gave battle, was captured and sunk, after a large portion of her cargo had been taken off.

Six more vessels then were destroyed in rapid succession, it was stated. The crews were taken on board the Appam, which ran due west across the Atlantic to Hampton Roads.

When the Appam passed in the Virginia Capes early today and took on a pilot, she was asked by the German wireless station who she was. The reply was, it was stated, that she was the German cruiser "Baffra." When she arrived off Old Point, quarantine officer McTaffery and after his inspection brought Lieutenant Berge ashore, the Appam got a clean bill of health. The four wounded sailors were the only cases of sickness found.

The Berge pilot continued his course and after his inspection brought Lieutenant Berge ashore. The Appam got a clean bill of health. The German Consul L. Marshall Von Schilling took charge of the situation and Lieutenant Berge himself under the consul's orders. They went to the office of Colonel Leo Haynes, of Fort Monroe, where the German officer paid his respects and explained why he had wireless station the name of the German Cruiser "Baffra."

Lieutenant Berge and Consul Von Schilling sent messages to the German Embassy at Washington and had conversations over the telephone with the embassy and with Customs Collector Hamilton, who is allowed on board the Appam. Boats encircling the steamer were forbidden to communicate.

CLAIM RAIDER WAS GERMAN CRUISER MOYE

The Appam has one three-inch gun mounted on her bow, but whether it was on board before her capture or was mounted by the Germans is not known. She was brought in under the German man-of-war flag instead of the German merchant flag and her name was given to the quarantine office as "H. M. S. Appam," meaning the German warship Appam.

The names of the steamers sunk by the raider which captured the Appam are given as the Trader, Aman Corbridge, Andine Dromonty, Farringsford and Clan Macavish.

It is now reported now that the raider was the German cruiser Moye, instead of a submarine although this is not confirmed.

New York, Feb. 1.—Associate pressmen may be an officer or man, master, or that the twenty-two officers there is in the former Merchant Marine in German prisoners of war on the German man-of-war ship named the auxiliary service.

Berge, who has the same name as American naval officers are puzzled. None of the officials could understand what he meant and do not understand how he understood why an officer with the rank of captain could leave a submarine.

It is now reported that the crew might have been German embassy leaving for Europe and officials taken from some unreported German embassies.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The liner Appam. There is the possibility that Prince Hatzfeldt of the German embassy is leaving for Europe and officials taken from some unreported German embassies.

YOUR HEIGHT IS WORTH MORE BUTTONS THIS YEAR

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1—Buttons will be distributed on coats this season according to the height of the wearer, it was declared at the convention of the custom cutters' association here today. A short man will have a one button saucy coat. The medium sized man will have two buttons on his coat; the tall man will get three buttons and four if he is tall enough. This decree was embodied in a set report of the styles committee of the association.

The committee reported that the form fitting coat still would rule, but that it would be longer and bear a narrower lapel and narrower collar than last season.

Spring coats will be skeleton lined, unpadded and will run to crescent shaped patch pockets. Vests will be single breasted, cut lower and bear no collar and the trousers will be narrow.

Changes were also decided upon for full dress suits. The front of the coat will be longer, the collars and lapels narrower and there will be an outer breast pocket.

GERMAN EXPLOIT MAY HAVE NEW BEARING ON SUB CONTROVERSY DISPOSITION OF SHIP A COMPLEX PROBLEM

Washington, Feb. 1.—Secretary Lansing said the Appam case would involve considerable investigation before any action by this government was taken. There was nothing to do he said, until the validity of the capture was determined. Inasmuch as the Appam is the first case since the beginning of the present war, where a prize had been brought into an American court officials said there would be a careful study of the subject in all phases, so that when a decision is reached it may be used as a precedent.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The exploit of the German commander in placing a crew from a submarine aboard a merchant ship and sealing her into port without loss of life of passengers or crew may have a bearing on the submarine controversy between the United States and Germany. Some officials were inclined to regard the fact as evidence to support the contention of the United States that even under modern conditions of naval warfare, a submarine can capture a ship without loss of life.

The supreme court in a decision announced in 1902, which may bear on the disposition of the Appam, held:

"Until condemnation captures acquire no absolute right of property in a prize and it is for the government to determine when the public interest requires a different destination."

A provision of the American naval war code which is held applicable to the Appam case says: "The principles that enemy goods and ships are liable to seizure being at present admitted, there can be little objection raised to placing the national flag of the capturing vessel over a seized vessel belonging to a friendly power. It does pass in good prize, to the state of the captor upon capture. It is brought in for adjudication."

Officials here attach importance to the question whether the Appam was in the service of the British government or was operating privately owned and controlled merchant vessel. In case it was in the government service the vessel upon capture by an en-

CONSENT DECREE IN CASH REGISTER CASE

Cincinnati, Feb. 1—Practically litigitors' business standing: in every change asked for by the timidating competitors by threats, every States government in its of patent infringement suits and action against the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, mess, patents or plants of competitor under the civil section of the courts without the consent of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, was court and the approval of the attorney general. The decision has the effect of strengthening the license act, misnamed as its constitutionality has been attacked.

The cases involving the decision were instituted by five Toledo saloon keepers to prevent the Lucas county board and the state board from interfering with their operation. They had been refused renewals of licenses by the county board on the ground of misconduct. They protested that since they had not been prosecuted, the refusal to permit them to continue their business was exercise of undue arbitrary power. A decree, they pointed out, has been declared a property right by the supreme court. Consequently they protested they had been deprived of property without proper judicial procedure.

Be sure to say you read this offer in The Portsmouth Daily Times.

Engineer Harper will also meet with the commission, but will have no voice in its affairs. Mayor Kaps and Service Director Calvert attended a portion of the meeting Monday evening.

Prior to the meeting, Alan N. Jordan, proprietor of the Washington Hotel, met with the members of the commission informally to request them to conduct an inquiry into the causes of what he claims is unusual corrosion in hot water pipes, caused by the action of the city water. He brought with him three sections of pipe which he said colored men in the North End, who were practically out of commission, owing to corrosion.

Mr. Jordan strenuously advocated the installation of some process that would reduce the corrosive qualities of the water, no matter what the cost. He said if his experience was a sample of what every property owner in Portsmouth had had, the court would be asked to deliver to the authorities of the third Industrial School.

Christine Shively, 16, the third girl arrested, was given a suspended sentence to the Delaware school, the evidence failing to show any evidence of immoral conduct on her part, according to the court. She was guilty, however, enough money would be spent on her of indiscreet acts, the court said.

Russell Williams and Tracy Bryant, the colored youths who stated that the hypo chlorides of lime used in the delinquency of the girls, will process for purification of the city water had been abandoned and that school at Lancaster Tuesday in the future, the liquid chlorine morning, while John H. Freedland would be used. This will do away the colored man who arranged the with the odor and smell in the city water and still insure pure water.

Young Marshon Innocent

Young Clay Marshon, whose name was mentioned in connection with other boys as having misappropriated a boy on Third street, called at The Times office Tuesday to enter strenuous denial to the charge. He said he had no part in any trouble, but was some distance away at the time. A boy named Wilson was the ring leader in the trouble and the names became confused, Marshon being reported to the court instead of the guilty party.

Members of the commission include Chairman Frank V. Kaps, head of the Portsmouth Steel and Zinc Company; John McMillan, of the Portsmouth Gas Company; William Driscoll, superintendent of the machine shop of the Whitaker-Glessner Steel Company; R. B. Cunningham, chief engineer of the Selsby Ship Company; Homer Higdon, chief mechanical engineer of the Whitaker-Glessner Steel Company.

MAYOR GETS JOB FOR BOY

Joe Wilson, the Twin Brit, W. Va., colored youth, who was abandoned here by his parents after kidnapping him there and taking him aboard a N. & W. freight train with them, has landed a job. Mayor H. H. Kaps interested himself in the boy and secured employment for him at the Turner hotel, and there is general regret around Headquarters now over the loss of the police escort.

VISITORS ATTEND MAYOR'S COURT

Rev. James E. Dibert and Samuel M. Skelton were the personal guests of Mayor H. H. Kaps, occupying seats behind the rail enclosure while he conducted police court Monday.

Mr. Skelton is an uncle of the mayor's wife and also an uncle of City Solicitor Anselm Skelton, having been a brother of the latter's father, the late Capt. James Skelton. He is from Boise, Idaho, but has been here ever since early last fall. He had attended the G. A. R. Encampment at Washington, D. "I had a sort of an itching on my limbs, and at first they broke out in small pimples. The skin was flushed and sore, and also red, and towards the last the pimples became one sore eruption. The itching was so severe that I could not sleep and I could not scratch the limbs because they burned so badly. The trouble lasted six weeks and I could not sleep my way as it should have been done."

"I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I sent for a free sample and applied it according to directions, and I gave me relief so I bought more, and in ten days I was healed." (Signed) Miss Gager, Westphalia, Kansas, July 7, 1915.

Portsmouth's Death Rate

Nine Ohio cities between 10,000 and 100,000 population, according to the 1910 census, had as high or higher death rate in 1914 than Portsmouth, according to statistics recently given out by the Department of Commerce, bureau of the census, at Washington.

Portsmouth's death rate that year was 14.6 per 1000 population. Cities having a higher rate were Chillicothe, 15.4; East Liverpool, 15.8; Findlay, 15.3; Ironton, 16.2; Marietta, 14.7; Stenberville, rate being 12.7. The figures show that other neighboring cities had a higher rate than Portsmouth.

During the year 1913, Portsmouth's death rate was 18.1, being exceeded only by that of two other cities, Chillicothe and Steubenville. That was probably due to the disastrous flood which visited this city that year, which carried sickness and death in its waters. The year previous the death rate in this city was 15.7.

FIGHTERS ARE FINED

ACCUSED OF BOOTLEGGING

Two young men giving the names of Harvey McLaughlin and Les Everling, who fought for 15 or 20 minutes in front of the Zeigler saloon and adjoining pool room on Chillicothe street, Saturday night, were fined $5 each in police court, Monday evening.

Thirteen men, 25 years old, were fined by Judge Beatty during January, a gain of 37 per cent over January of last year, when 22 hoodlums were fined. Usually less hoodlums are fined in January than any other month in the year. If the rate of increase is kept up throughout the year, the number during 1915 will far exceed that of 1914. The fact this year is leap year may have something to do with the increase.

Andersons' Big Special Long Cloth

Way last October when curtains were cheap we purchased one hundred pieces of this long-cloth (10 yards to a piece) and had our own name stamped on it; it looked so good. Britain's Best Barnsley Crash 9c

(Not timed.)

Just between you and us, there are going to be some people use crash that is not all linen before this European war continues much longer. We are aware that it may go hard at first to use a crash that is not linen, but we saw months ago the crisis to which we were drifting, so we placed an import order for some bleached Barnsley crash with fast red border, and good weight and good width. The crash is now here. The cotton thread has been put through the linen process and made up in linen looms and is a splendid duplicate of an expensive linen crash, only, it isn't linen. It is, however, much neater and better than most of the not-linen crashes you will find on the market, and what is positive, the price of this will advance. For a few days we offer it at 9c the yard.

Half Price Sale on Hair Switches!

The sale begins Wednesday. The prices are one-half the former prices. You ask, why? The answer may interest you. Our second floor used to sell hair switches. We say "used to." That was before our first floor got to carrying them. Then the second floor sales dwindled, the down-stairs stock was getting the business. The second floor buyer made a proposition to the first floor buyer by which he would dispose of all his hair goods at a very low price. No use to carry them if they didn't sell. The bargain was made and the stock transferred and we offer you the benefit of the second floor's loss by throwing these handsome switches out on sale beginning Wednesday at half prices.

QUIT THE DEVIL AND READ THE BIBLE

Good News Of The Gospel Keeps Satan's Temptations Away

(By Leroy E. Bittner)

Notwithstanding the fact that inclement weather prevailed before and during the services last night at Trinity, the song service was one of the most impressive features of the evening's service.

One of the features is the well representation of the Fourth Street Sunday school orchestra. This is a great addition to the success of the meeting since as much depends upon the music as on the preaching. Messrs. Albert, Walter and Clarence Clausen were the members out last night. Miss Blake, of the Trinity orchestra, was there, also. Miss Aylesworth presided at the piano.

The numbers sang by the choir were beautiful and inspiring. The weather seemed not to affect the members of this melodious and harmonious gathering of people, and they were out in full numbers.

The "preacher bench" was well occupied. Rev. Dihert of the Wesley Hall Mission can hardly keep his seat till the invitation is offered, so that he can go out through the audience and do personal work.

Rev. Reed took as a scripture reading, Matthew, 5th chapter.

He announced that meetings were to be held today (Tuesday) at the following places:

Drew factory, 12, noon.

Selby factory, 12, noon.

Engine room of the round house at the Terminal, at 12 o'clock midnight tonight for the benefit of the men working at night.

The Misses Aylesworth then sang a duet, after which Rev. W. T. Gililand, of Munly M. E. church, led the congregation in prayer, expressing hope that the audience would have recipient hearts for the message about to be delivered.

Rev. Reed, upon taking the pulpit, announced that he had decided not to preach upon the subject, "The Unardonable Sin," as previously announced, owing to the fact that there were so few unsaved persons present, but would preach upon this very important subject at a later and more opportune time.

Sermon.

Rev. Reed did not take a text, but plunged at once into his sermon. In part he said:

"I once asked an audience this question: 'What Is the Gospel?'

The answer, 'The Gospel Is Matthew, Luke and John.' 'No.'

I replied, and another answer was,

'The Story of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.'

Gospel is good news and tidings of great joy.

'Go unto all the world and tell the good news to every preacher.'

What a happy time Christmas is when the angels sang of glad tidings of great joy.

"Pence on Jesus. He will cast your sins in the depths of the sea to remember them no more."

"Once, during my younger days, I was sitting by the seaside watching the tide as it came in and went out, and was thinking of the sea. And I wondered if there could be a high and low tide to God's love and mercy. So I took a stone, marked it and threw it into the sea, and then sat down reading. After a short time it kept getting darker. I exclaimed to Rachel, our cook, who she didn't summon me to breakfast, and then I observed that it got darker instead of lighter, and she said, 'You have been wicked and naughty and this is the Judgment Day and you are not prepared. Then I suddenly remembered what had taken place, and I screamed and ran from the room. There was what I thought one safe place in the whole house in which to hide from storms and everything else, and that was in the library. There was a big, empty shelf and into the corner of it I crawled waiting for the house to come down with a crash. After waiting for what seemed ages to me, Rachel came in and gathered me in her arms and said: 'It's only supper time, dearie, it's not breakfast and it's just getting night. Come, eat your supper.' I went out, but I couldn't eat anything. I was too badly scared."

"Do you remember how scared you were when Hale's comet came? They said the tail would sweep the earth and everybody would be smothered to death by the gas."

"There was a woman out in the yard gathering her eggs on the day the comet was to strike. Finally she heard a crash. She dropped the eggs, and crawling on her hands and knees she crawled into the yard and entered the big barn and crawled into a corner under the work bench. Finally she came out and found out that good news!

"When I was a lad I was troubled at the thought of death. A friend once took me to a house where there was death. He lifted me into the casket, drew back the covering and I gazed into that dead man's face. I was badly scared, and for years afterward I was afraid of the dark. But I am not afraid of death now. Death is no longer an enemy or a foe to me. Death is no more than a hand that unlocks the cage door and lets me out in native air. Death is my last friend here during life."

"There was a man dying, and he called for a friend to pray for him."

"Another was dying, but he was rejoicing and praising God that he was going home. He had believed what the other didn't."

"Used to be different from other boys. I always liked different things than other people. Your sins are forgiven. This is good news and it comes from God. Through your sins be as scarlet, I will wash them white as snow."

"I recall an incident in my life. I was young and was trying to preach. I was walking up a rail road to the church, and I got the blues, got homesick. Did you ever get homesick? If you never did, you don't know what an awful thing it is."

"If you've ever had the toothache, you know where it is. If you've ever had the, the er-stomach ache, you know where it is. If you've ever had the headache, have ever been sea-sick you know where it is, but to be homesick—you don't know where it is. I knew that the man who had given it to me had removed its fangs making it impossible for it to sting me. But if I hadn't known that I would have beaten all the others through the door. I used dig up dead rabbits and put their bones together with string and have a fine time."

"It is the same with the man who was dying. One knew what the other didn't. He knew that Christ had hung on the cross, and he was not afraid of death."

"O! Death, where is thy sting?"

"Oh Grave, where is thy victory?"

"It is blessed good news that sin hath no dominion. Death no power to injure."

"I also used to be afraid of the Judgment Day. And I was not the only one either. My father and I once had a slight difference about something. I forgot what it was, we had so many. There was no blood shed, but there was plenty of wood shed. Father had a big hand and it covered so much space. He thrashed me many times for things that I didn't do, but it was like the story of a man I once knew. He had been coming to church, and then I missed him for about six months. Finally he came back and I asked him where he had been. 'In jail,' he replied. 'What for?' I questioned him. Then he explained that he had been put there in connection with a robbery that had been committed. 'But I was innocent,' he declared. 'I can prove I was 40 miles from the place at the time it happened.' Then I said: 'Why didn't you do it?' 'Well,' he said, 'I was in a worst place than that, and they would have given me a longer time had they but known it.'

"So it was with me. I didn't get thrashed for so many things I did do—that I kept still when I got thrashed for things I didn't do."

"Anyway, I got put to bed in the middle of the afternoon and after a while I went to sleep. Finally, I awoke and heard dishes rattling. I got up, dressed and went down to get my breakfast. I had forgotten what had previously taken place. (Sleep is a wonderful rest over.) I went into the kitchen and asked Rachel, our cook, who she didn't summon me to breakfast, and then I observed that it kept getting darker. I exclaimed to Rachel that it was getting darker instead of lighter, and she said, 'You have been wicked and naughty and this is the Judgment Day and you are not prepared. Then I suddenly remembered what had taken place, and I screamed and ran from the room. There was what I thought one safe place in the whole house in which to hide from storms and everything else, and that was in the library. There was a big, empty shelf and into the corner of it I crawled waiting for the house to come down with a crash. After waiting for what seemed ages to me, Rachel came in and gathered me in her arms and said: 'It's only supper time, dearie, it's not breakfast and it's just getting night. Come, eat your supper.'

"Finally she heard a crash. She dropped the eggs, and crawling on her hands and knees she crawled into the yard and entered the big barn and crawled into a corner under the work bench. Finally she came out and found out that a runaway team had crushed into the barn, instead of the comet hit, washed in the blood of the Lamb."

"One certain night the stars began to shoot and people, men and women alike, ran from their homes, into the streets, crying with shame, thinking the Judgment Day had come."

"I'm not afraid if the Judgment Day comes tonight. I know my best friend is sitting on the throne. He, who lifted me up out of the pit of sin and shame. He, not restrain from applauding who redeemed me is sitting on the throne as they came—young and old."

"My heart is at peace old—from all sections of the child of the King, saved and re-sight, seemed, and that I can have peace in heaven. The wrath of God has spent its fury upon Calvary."

"A friend told me of a prairie fire out west. The guides say the sheet of flame sweeping down upon them and he quickly set fire to the grass around them. The rest of the party did not know what to do as they were seemingly great personal workers. They caught between two fires. As the get someone up front and don't flames started before them the stop a minute but go out after guide shouted 'come.' Leading somebody else, their horses followed in the path of the flames, with the other sheet of flames bearing down upon them. But when that great mass of flames reached the official board would be held to ready burned and charred ground arrangements for Rev. Reed's it parted and went another way, but the party had to fall to the ground with bowed faces, the heat was so intense."

"Tonight you can escape this awful flame if you will but only step to Calvary, where the wrath of God has spent its force."

"There are still heights and breadths and depths we have not yet attained."

"Night after night I stand before this great audience of people. And if I asked all who professed Christianity to stand, not more than fifty or sixty would remain seated. But all the Christians will entertain many more, but never was there a more thrilling scene within her walls than when that handsome crowd, under the lead of the inspired evangelist, sang and clapped 'Washed in the Blood of the Lamb.'

NOTES

This is the last week of the campaign, so to speak. Evangelist Reed thinks however, it should be just the beginning. He will be away, he says, but the churches should keep up the work so splendidly begun, and there should be a revival all the year.

If Evangelist Reed should ever conclude to pass up the pulpit he could easily get a job as base ball reporter. His description of a home run is idyllic.

Many people get "warmed up" more in the after meeting than they do in the regular meeting.

Prof. Grant said that Rev. Strecker's announcement in regard to the meeting to make plans for Rev. Reed's collections, next Sunday meant every man in the house—and woman, too.

Great interest is being manifested in the noon day shop meetings, and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Reed, Mr. Grant and the Aylesworth sisters, as well as local preachers and laymen take the lead.

There was no business for the amateur nurse maids in the official nursery, in the Trinity parsonage, last night. The mothers have lots of grace, but not enough to permit them to take their babies out in the kind of weather that prevailed last night. One of the nurse maids, very young and very much unmarried, says it is a means of fun to take care of the kiddies. She had rather be there than in the church.

J. H. Finney is one of the liveliest wires connected with the revival. He is on the spot at all times, whether the crisis be spiritual, social or financial. Some call him "Professor," but we don't know why, unless it is because he once taught school on Main's Run.

The best he can get from his intimate friends is plain "Jim."

Rev. Marting is on duty again looking a trifle peaked after his tussle with the grip. He says a Methodist preacher can't afford to be sick these times.

The ever faithful choir showed up in goodly numbers last night, despite the uncertain weather. Their work is a labor of love, and they seem to enjoy it.

Called To Manchester

Rev. and Mrs. B. B. Cartwright left Tuesday afternoon for Manchester, being called there by the illness of Mrs. Cartwright's mother, Mrs. J. W. Bradley. They will be gone several days.

Prayer meeting of the Central Presbytery will be held as usual.

Elders will not meet on Wednesday evening.

Correction In Price

The price of $7.95 quoted on brass beds in Hansen Bros' advertisement in Mandan's Times was incorrect. The price should have been $11.75. The beds are beautified in every respect and the value very tempting at $11.75.

In fact, Messrs. Hansen are quoting a very low price indeed, for the beds cannot be bought to car load lots at $11.75. It was only through a very fortunate purchase that they secured these brass beds, they buying them at such a price that allows them to sell them at $11.75. The special price, however, is only good this evening between 7 and 9 o'clock or during the progress of their green tag sale.

ADAM YOUNGMAN STRUCK BY N.&W. TRAIN: IS BADLY INJURED

Adam Youngman, aged 63, employed as tender of the last gallery in the Tenth street factory of the Irving Drew Shoe company, was run down and badly injured by an eastbound N. & W. freight train Monday evening at 5:05, while on his way home from work.

The accident took place at Tenth and Lincoln streets and it is believed that it resulted from Mr. Youngman miscalculating the speed of the train bearing down upon him. The engine struck Youngman and hurled him out of the path of the engine, save his right hand, which came in contact with the pony truck wheels of the engine. The little finger and the adjoining one of Youngman's right hand were so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

Mr. Youngman was hurled some distance by the engine and when fellow workmen rushed to the unfortunate man they found him in an unconscious condition. As soon as possible the victim was rushed to his home in Harvard Place and Drs. Berndt, Haderman and Rardin were called. No bones were found broken, but Mr. Youngman suffered internal injuries and his nervous system is seriously affected by the shock.

According to shoeworkers who were passing about the Tenth street crossing about the same time as Mr. Youngman, he evidently did not figure the speed of the train, as he sooner stepped on the tracks than the engine struck him.

Mr. Youngman is one of the city's best known residents. He is the father of John Youngman, employed as a foreman in the Selby plant, and of Charles Youngman, employed as an electrician in the plant of the Whitaker-Glessner company. His condition is regarded as serious.

Local Commission Is Not Affected

Salaries of the two liquor license commissioners of Scioto county will not be effected by the readjustment of salaries of commissioners in counties with a limited number of saloons, made by the state licensing board Saturday.

Upon the basis decided by the state board, commissioners in Scioto county will receive $45 monthly. This is the amount that the two commissioners have received since Governor Willis went into office. David Stabler and Dr. P. W. Young are the commissioners in this county.

If Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight With Oil of Korein

Lack of fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from any druggist a box of oil of korein cap. sales; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood.

Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better.

The Fisher & Streich Pharmacy can supply you.

TO RUN-DOWN WOMEN

Detroit Woman Tells How To Regain Strength.

Detroit, Mich.—I was in such a run-down condition I had no ambition to do anything. I had a chronic cough and cold and nothing seemed to give me any relief, and I was gradually getting worse, until a friend advised me to try Vinol which I did. After the first day or two it seemed to put new life into me, the tired worn-out feeling began to disappear, I regained my appetite and was able to get a good night's rest. The cough gradually wore away, and I am now feeling like myself again, so that I can do all my housework and go about my duties as usual. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine.

Mrs. W. E. Waters, Detroit, Mich.

Vinol restores health and strength in conditions like this, because in a natural manner it increases the appetite, tones up the digestive organs, enriches the blood and strengthens every organ in the body.

We guarantee that Vinol will do the same for any run-down person in Portsmouth or give back their money.

All bets on the weather are off until after Wednesday, February 2nd, for on that day Sir Groundhog will come out from his winter hiding place to take a look at old Mother Earth. If the day is cloudy and the sun is obscured from

If, on the other hand, the sun is shining and he sees his shadow, he will scamper back into his hole, there to re-

GERMANS SEIZE BRITISH LINER MISSING SHIP REACHES U. S. PORT FLYING GERMAN FLAG

TEUTON SUBMARINE CAPTURED THE VESSEL

WOMEN AND CHILDREN ABOARD

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., Feb. 1.—The British South African liner Appam given up for lost was brought into Hampton Roads this morning flying the German man-of-war flag with a German prize crew of twenty-two men commanded by Lieutenant Berg. She was captured at sea on January 15, four days after she left Dakar, British West Africa.

The Appam brought her original passengers and 138 persons said to have been taken from other vessels by the Germans. Four injured passengers on board are said to have been taken from an English ship from Australia. About 425 persons, including passengers and crew, are aboard the ship.

Norfolk, Feb. 1.—It is said that there seem to be about a hundred women and children on the Appam which has not yet been boarded. The vessel is reported about to leave for Newport News.

The Appam left Dakar, Africa, January 11, bound to Plymouth, England. She carries 168 passengers and a crew of 133. High colonial officials of the British government are said to be among the vessel's passengers.

New York, Feb. 1.—The Appam was built in 1913 at Belfast, sailed from Dakar in the French Colony of Senegal, West Africa, for Plymouth, England, on Jan. 11. When about four days out wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased, and as the days passed without further word she was virtually given up for lost.

A despatch from Hull, England, to London, Lloyds on Jan. 28 said that the British steamship Treacle had reported having passed at sea on Jan. 16 a life boat with the name Appam painted on the stern and with the bows knocked away. It was feared she had gone down in a severe storm which occurred in the waters through which she was passing, possibly had encountered a German submarine operating off the African coast. The Appam under ordinary conditions would have reached Plymouth on Jan. 21.

The Appam sailed with 166 passengers and with a crew of 133. Among the passengers were British colonial officials. After leaving Dakar she called at ports on the west coast of Africa, picking up officials who intended to return to England on furlough; these formed a considerable portion of her passenger list.

Among the passengers who were booked to sail on the Appam were Sir Edward and Lady Mervyn and their suite; Frederick Seton James, former acting colonial secretary and closely identified with Colonial administrative affairs in Africa; Francis Charles Fuller, who was appointed chief commissioner of Askari in 1905, and Mrs. Fuller.

The Appam is 425 feet long, 57 feet beam, of 781 tons gross.

New York, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The following dispatch from London received by the Tribune this morning is believed to refer to yesterday's Zeppelin raid, details of which had been withheld by the British censor. Paris, Feb. 1.—A Zeppelin started in the direction of Paris last night at 9:45 p. m. A warning was sent out from Compiegne that a German airship had been sighted. The military governor of Paris gave orders that preparations be made to give the alarm, if necessary. When the Zeppelin got into the fields of the searchlights on the French front, however, it turned back and is supposed to have abandoned a projected raid.

5 COUNTIES FLOODED BY ONE BREAK IN THE LEVEE

(Bulletin)

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—No word had come early today from Achard's Ferry, near Redfield, Ark., where last night forty families were reported marooned by floods.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—Although about Joplin, Mo., operations are greater part of the southwestern states affected by floods, reports San Diego, Calif., Feb. 1, clearly today indicate further damage. When the water drains out of San Diego county's flood valleys, many ranchmen now encamped in the hills, who a week ago counted themselves prosperous, will have no ranches to return to. Not only are their dwellings, barns, orchards, and livestock gone, but the soil itself has been devastated by erosion and deposits of sand and gravel.

It is feared the counties will be affected by the flow of water caused by breaking of the levee near Cummins. The state farm near Cummins is reported covered with water and negro prisoners kept at the farm will be removed today. The white convicts were removed late yesterday.

In many parts the train service was seriously interfered with, some of the railroads being forced to detour trains on account of the high water.

Railroads in Southern Missouri also were experiencing difficulty, the St. Louis and San Francisco especially having trouble by reason of Monday morning for Cincinnati workmen. In the mining district on a business trip.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 1.—Trouble between four hundred striking laborers at the Carnegie Steel Company's plant developed last night when strikers attacked two policemen who ordered a crowd to move on. After one officer was beaten a force of twenty reserves were rushed to the scene and the strikers dispersed. It is feared an attempt will be made to call out more workmen at another mill of the plant.

SEA POWER THE DECISIVE ELEMENT

Early in our Civil War, the North isolated the South; but it took years to reduce the fortress thus isolated, and it was always possible for the South, by occupying Washington and our eastern cities, to win the war. But ultimately the blockade was fatal, when coupled with the failure of the South to obtain a decision on land. Unless the Germans shall find a way to break the blockade or compel the British to raise it, there seems to me no reason to doubt that the end of the war is assured. It is a fact that Germany has so far failed in every attempt to reach Britain, and her failures have been so costly, that it is difficult to believe that she is any longer within German power to compel Britain.

Bear in mind, always, that this war is, in its main issue, a contest between the Germans and the British. The dispute between the French and the Germans is limited to a single province. Russia and Germany could arrange their differences by bargain. Italy could be bought off by a payment in territory. But it is not any question of relatively minor importance that separates Germany and Britain. On the contrary, Germany has asserted that Britain has deliberately set out to thwart her expansion, to check her natural growth, and that it is only on the ruins of British sea power that she can erect that empire which is necessary to her existence.

Great Britain on her part, slow to perceive the challenge, has now taken it up as she took up the challenge of Holland, of Spain, and of France both under Louis XIV and Napoleon. In every one of these cases Britain did not pause with a victory or abandon hope when she was left alone to fight. She fought to the end and to the destruction of her foes, so far as their marine ambitions were concerned, because she saw in these ambitions a peril to her own existence. Today she has accepted the German challenge as Rome took that of Carthage. She is bending her energies and her power, not to throw Germany back within her own boundaries in Europe, but to put an end for a generation at the least to all peril at sea. She is fighting, not to destroy the German nation, but to destroy Germany as a rival naval power and marine competitor.

Absorbed in our study and interest in the land operations, properly impressed by the magnitude of German victories, we in America, as indeed the observers in the whole world, have too little appreciated the truth that the land operations have lacked the character of a decision; and the fact that they have lacked this character has given to the naval operations an importance far in excess of those on shore. British handling, defeat, disaster on land have captured the mind of a generation which is too unfamiliar with British history to appreciate that the same things have marked every great British conflict and were fatal only in the case of our own War of the Revolution, and then merely because Britain at the decisive hour also temporarily lost control of the sea.

On the map, the German conquests make a formidable showing, but how much more impressive is the showing of the British conquests if you color the seas to indicate them! Some day Europe will talk peace, but what value will peace have for Germany if it does not include in the terms the right to use the seas? But how is Germany to persuade Britain to concede this right, if she cannot capture it? Does any one suppose that Germany will be able to extort Britain before she is herself exhausted? This is absurd, because Britain is still able to carry on a portion of her industrial life and her resources in capital far exceed Germany.

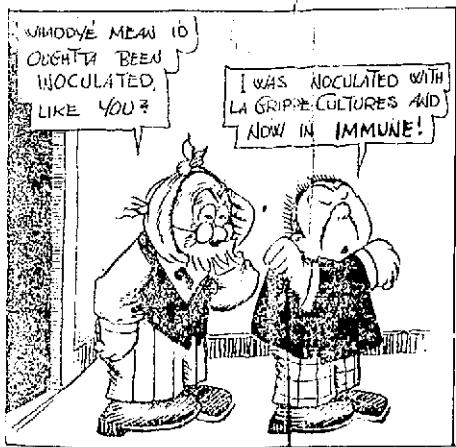

As for ruin, when peace is made, if the British are able to compel the Germans to give up their merchant marine, even if they are only to forbid German ships the right to use their harbors and their colonial ports and naval stations as ports of call, in concert with their allies, German shipping will be out of the race and the British will replace their only rival in the carrying trade of the world, and find her new wealth to replace old.

Poquie is idle, and I do not mean to prophesy. What I do mean to emphasize is, that eighteen months after the outbreak of the war, sea power, navalism if you please, has so completely beaten militarism, that the situation that exists, unless Germany can find some way to modify it, by success over the British, insures German defeat exactly as Napoleon's defeat was insured when he failed to dispose of sea power and faced the Continent in arms.—Fascinating Power and the War, by Frank S. Simonds in the American Review of Reviews for February.

We hope you will get the children interested in that new feature "Goops," which we started in Monday's Times. There will be a "Goop" rhyme and picture in the paper each evening for twelve weeks, each pointing out some little thing that a child ought not to do but which every one is very apt to do. We have looked over the series and we are sure that there will be much to enjoy, and a good many lessons may be learned.

Of course we oughtn't to speak about it, but say, those steady, persistent rainy days do have a tendency to bring up bad recollections. We always drop around to see whether or not our emergency equipment is in working order.

William Cooper Proctor is killing two birds with one stone, and the stone doesn't cost him a cent at that. His literary bureau is sending out stuff boosting him as one of the Big Four, bounden for Chicago, coupling it with much laudation of the soap he makes, and every G. O. P. organ is falling for the con.

Just in passing we are mighty glad to see a steel man on the directorate of the Board of Trade, just where one ought to be, of course.

New York, Feb. 1.—The fake press club solicitors have arrived in New York for their annual pickings. Polished, suave and well-dressed, they plead with gullible business men for funds for the poor over-worked newspapermen. If all the homes for writers they have solicited for were bunched together they would make a good-sized little village.

Strangely they always make a killing despite the warnings in all the newspapers that reporters and editors might not have all the necessities of Fifth Avenue, but they all have self-respect and do not stoop to charity.

A representative of the Wall street Record and Review—there is no such paper by the way—gathered in 260 lovely dollars in one day around Times Square before he was discovered and decamped for another part of town. The New York Press Club looks out after worthy newspapermen who may have found money a little coy and reluctant, but there are very few who ever appeal to the club for funds.

There are many newspaper men, by the way, who are certain he is the real discoverer of the Big Nail. Dr. Cook has on his latest trip discovered a new hair tonic. It is cold air, and he shows his locks to prove it. Cold air will bring out hair on a billiard ball. The doctor says hot air will not start anything worth while.

ADAM YOUNGMAN STRUCK BY N.&W. TRAIN: IS BADLY INJURED

Adam Youngman, aged 63, employed as tender of the last gallery in the Tenth street factory of the Irving Drew Shoe company, was run down and badly injured by an eastbound N. & W. freight train Monday evening at 5:35, while on his way home from work.

The accident took place at Tenth and Lincoln streets and it is believed that it resulted from Mr. Youngman miscalculating the speed of the train bearing down upon him. The engine struck Youngman and hurled him out of the path of the engine, save his right hand, which came in contact with the pony truck wheels of the engine. The little finger and the adjoining one of Youngman's right hand were so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

Mr. Youngman was hurled some distance by the engine and when fellow workmen rushed to the unfortunate man they found him in an unconscious condition. As soon as possible the victim was rushed to his home in Harvard Place and Drs. Berndt, Haldeman and Rardin were called. No bones were found broken, but Mr. Youngman suffered internal injuries and his nervous system is seriously affected by the shock.

According to shoeworkers who were passing the Tenth street crossing about the same time as Mr. Youngman, he evidently did not figure the speed of the train, as he no sooner stepped on the trucks than the engine struck him.

Mr. Youngman is one of the city's best known residents. He is the father of John Youngman, employed as a foreman in the Selly plant, and of Charles Youngman, employed as an electrician in the plant of the Whitaker-Glessner company. His condition is regarded as serious.

OBITUARY

Ed Coriell

Ed Coriell, aged 60 years, a retired jeweler, who was one of Portsmouth's best known former citizens, died suddenly of heart trouble at the family home in Gephart's Station Monday at midnight.

Mr. Coriell had been in poor health for some years past and a severe attack of la grippe is believed to have hastened his end. The family moved to Gephart's from this city, last August. Mrs. Alice Hancock, wife of Grover William Hancock, who died a few months ago, was Mr. Coriell's last surviving sister.

Mr. Coriell was born and reared in Portsmouth and lived here practically all of his life-time. He for years conducted a jewelry store on Second street, just east of Court street, and later on Chillicothe street between Fourth and Fifth streets, and was also identified with a building and loan association for a time. At his bedside when the final summons came were his faithful and devoted wife, Mrs. Anna Coriell, and grand-daughter, Miss Helen Noel. A son, Walter Coriell, who also made his home there, was in the city visiting relatives over night, when word was received of the father's death.

Other children Mr. Coriell leaves to mourn his death are: Edward E. Coriell, a jeweler of Bowling Green, O., Charles Scott Coriell, a shoemaker of Cincinnati, Mrs. Mabel Burke, wife of William Burke, of New Seventh street, this city, and Otto Y. Coriell, a clerk in the N. & W. general foreman's office. The body after having been brought to Portsmouth in Daehler's ambulance, was removed to the latter's home, No. 1635 Highland avenue.

Mr. Coriell was one of the earliest members of Masonic Lodge, Knights of Pythias, but withdrew from the organization some years ago. He was one of the charter members of McPherson Council, Royal Arcanum and retained his membership up to the time of his death. Mrs. Coriell was expected to arrive in the city on a noon train to make arrangements for the funeral.
